

The FCC has the power to do something about Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election.

Sinclair is obligated by law to serve the public interest. It seems to me that they are breaking the law by airing a anti-Kerry "documentary" and calling it "news" so that they don't have to give equal time to an anti-Bush piece.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard.

Thank you.
